GENERAL PERSHING UNABLE TO CONFIRM REPORTS THAT BANDIT IS DEAD AND BURIED.

SHOOT DIAZ LEADERS

Three Mexicans Who Attempted to Selze Juarez in Plotted Revolt
Are Executed.—Arrest
Fifteen Mexicans
in El Paso.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Queretaro, Mexico, April 11.—The war department announced today it had reason to believe Villa had been killed in action action and that searching parties had been sent out to find his body.

General Pershing's Headquarters at the front, April 10, 10 p.m., via Mexican telegraph, April 11, reported that no reports had been received here by General Pershing that Villa is dead and buried. These reports are under investigation. Meanwhile the hunt for the Villa bandits is proceeding with renewed vigor with the arrival at the front of General Pershing.

Mexicans who had seen Villa on his return south said the bandit look thin and unchanged a week ago. Reports, however, are conflicting. One reliable authority stated Villa was able to walk the first day after he received his wound, which indicated that no bones were broken.

Aeroplanes today covered several hundred square miles of territory, scouting a country heretofore unexplored by planes.

Contradictory Reports.

Colombia, N. M., April 11.—Lieutenant General and General, the aerial corps returning here today after a long distance flight from San Antonio, 330 miles south of the border, said that reports were current among the natives in the vicinity of Santa Anna, seventy miles southwest of Chihuahua City, that Villa was dead of blood poisoning caused by his wounds. Other reports indicated Villa was in flight, closely followed by American troops of Parral and near the Durango border.

Military authorities recognize the reports of the bandit chieftain's death may be another ruse to throw the Americans off what has been termed a "hot trail," but nevertheless the fever said no tendency is manifested to be.

Death Rumor.

There seems no doubt that Villa was wounded and captured. His wife and physicians have convinced me that he was shot through both legs, one of them being broken by a bullet while another shot lodged in his stomach. A man in that condition without medical attention could scarcely live long.

The aerial corps plan to send another aviator to scout over the region in which the natives have reported Villa was buried in an attempt to find the elusive leader.

Information brought by Dargus and Gandy indicate that American cavalry have entirely surrounded the detachment which is reported to have been carrying Villa on the litter. The advanced cavalry detachments, they say, are about 400 miles south of the border, below Parral, near Durango, Mexico, while several columns are encircling the town of Satevo, where General Pershing today was establishing his new headquarters.

Credence Given Report.

Washington, April 11.—Unofficial and unconfirmed reports that Villa is dead reached the Carranza embassy today and were given some degree of credence by officials here. The reports were represented as having come from General Carranza's provincial capital.

The terms of Villa's death were unconfirmed by the latest dispatches. The circumstantial reports of Villa's recent injury, however, and the rigors of his long and hurried flight in which he has been variously reported as being carried on a litter on the shoulders of his men or in a carriage over the rough Mexican trails, gave some color to the possibility that the bandit may have been unable to survive the hardships of the flight in his disabled condition.

BRIGHAM TAKES JAB AT SELF-RIGHTEOUS

DELIVERS SECOND OF UNION LENGTH SERVICES ON TOPIC, "THE CONCEITED GENERAL."

SEEK EASY SALVATION

Conforming to Ceremonies of the Church Is Not Sufficient Declares Speaker at Monday Evening Session.

Rev. F. H. Brigham took a straight jab at those people who are content with their own goodness instead of turning to Christ for inspiration. In his second of the series of Lenten meetings, the speaker held the attention of everyone in his audience and is a most interesting and able talker.

The Congregational church last night was entirely filled on the lower floor and it is expected that the balconies will be necessary tonight. Director Frank Deane is doing wonders with his chorus of nearly a hundred voices. This large choir leads the singing and gives splendid numbers each night. Arthur Schoof rendered the solo last evening.

Rev. Brigham impressed upon the parents the importance of bringing the children to the meetings, illustrating the wisdom of starting the youth before the age of sixteen. The subject for tonight is "The Question of a Keen Mind." A resume of last night's address follows:

"First, I not wash in them and be clean?" 2 Kings, 5:12 b.

"There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the ends thereof are the ways of death." Proverbs 14:12.

"In all literature there is perhaps no more beautiful story than this story recorded in the 5th chapter, 2nd book of Kings: The story of Naaman the leper. Naaman was commander in chief of the Syrian army, loved by his king, honored by his countrymen. Under the leadership of Syria had been freed from the oppression of the surrounding nations and had obtained her place in the sun. He was a man of undaunted courage. All that wealth and position could obtain were his, but over the fair picture of a successful and honored life a black shadow is cast. Famine, loss of attraction, wealth and spiritual life. His followers were to be pointed to him and through him, to the Heavenly Father, say, 'I am the vine. Ye are the branches. Every branch in me beareth not fruit, for ye taketh away' because there is no life in it. It is formal and outward.

"Another way in which many are traveling in self-deception may be called the way of the individual conscience. Men say that 'I do as my conscience dictates,' and as an excuse for their bad course of conduct, 'I affirm that their conscience does not trouble them.' There is perhaps no more common error and certainly there is no greater or more fatal one.

"Conscience is not authority to one; it is authority to another. God never gave us a conscience to determine what are the things which are right and wrong. Conscience is an inward monitor, an automatic burglar alarm system. It is that which warns us when we are at the point of danger which has been determined by our moral judgment. It is a matter of education. Conscience is not an ardent of conduct, and no man is safe who is depending upon this as a guide. There is one guide for us in this day of light and revelation, and that is the revealed will of God contained in his word, and your life must be guided by that if you are to follow a way that seems right to man, but the end thereof is the way of death. He who follows the truth of this book, and the great Master, shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. No man cometh to the Father but by me. Follow me. This is the call."

"Another way along which multitudes are traveling to their own destruction is the way of self-righteousness. They are depending upon their own right lives and their own merits for salvation. They say they are steeped in the mind of the captive maid, that there is a God in Israel. Elisha, the prophet, hears of the dilemma and sends word to have the foreign general come to him that he may know that there is a God in Israel; and so again the procession takes its way in all of the Eastern pomp toward the great Jordan to find the humble dwelling place of the man of God. Before it halts his chariot and sends his servant to state his case, and make his request; but the man of God realizes that a deadlier disease than leprosy has its grip on Naaman, the Commander in Chief of the armies of Syria, a disease that kills not only the body but the soul, the disease of self-conceited, God-forgetting pride in wealth and position and power and dominion. And with the healing of the body he will also prescribe for the disease of the soul; and so he sends his servant to tell this mighty man of valor who has received the plaudits of a nation, brought to his feet tribes and peoples, received with dignity and honor at kings' courts. He sends his servant to this great man, and tells him to drive on and dip himself seven times in the river Jordan and he shall be clean. At once the soul disease of the man becomes more apparent than the bodily disease. He turns away in a rage.

"Personal pride has been insulted, national pride has been insulted. I thought he would come out and strike his hands over the place, call upon the name of God and recover in the last place I want to mention one of the most serious of all mistakes, following the way of the crowd. Multitudes of men are simply drifting with the stream. They say, 'Well, I am as good as the average man. I am doing the things that others do. I am a part of the crowd and I will take my chances with them.' Men are making this mistake in pleasure, in business, and in religion. A young man who starts in with a business co-operation may do as the crowd does in relation to his work, and he will stay longer with the crowd at the bottom of the ladder. He may separate himself from the crowd, making his work something out of the ordinary; give himself his task with more than asked for earnestness and study, and climb to the top of the ladder. The man who follows with the crowd never reaches the top. The man who stays with the crowd is bound to be failure. Nothing can be more true in the moral life. Jesus spoke plainly and truly when He said, 'Strait is the gate and narrow the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.' For wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth unto destruction, and many there be that go in thereat.' And from these words from the Master himself I want to challenge you to look into your life and see if you are going the way of the crowd that seems right. If you are, hear me from him, 'It is the way of destruction and the end thereof are the ways of death.'

me of the leprosy. Why should I wash in the river Jordan? Are not the rivers of Canaan and Phoenician better than all the rivers of this alien land? May I not wash in them and be clean? And so he turned away in a rage, thus turning his back upon the one real chance for healing a life. And that is what multitudes of people are doing right now; they hear the will of God, but in their self-conceit and snug complacency think they can do a better job. Better usually because easier; because it involves less humiliation and hardship, less breaking away from the old life and old ideas.

"The writer of Proverbs in the 14th chapter, 12th verse, gives a striking answer to this very question. 'There is a way that seemeth right unto a man but the end thereof are the ways of death.' This is surely a startling truth! That man may be following a path which he thinks is right, which seems right to him to be right, and which is altogether wrong, and which will ultimately result in the most fatal consequences. That a man may be sincere and yet, because mistaken, find that he is suffering the most fearful consequences. And yet this startling truth is one which would never be questioned except in the realm of moral and spiritual things.

Not long ago a great liner went upon the rocks. An investigation was held. The rocks were shown to be that the compass had in some way become disarranged. The captain had thought he was right. He was following the compass. He had been altogether sincere in his intended purpose of keeping his vessel in the customary channels, and safe-guarding the lives intrusted to his care, and yet his ship went upon the rocks.

"First there is no way of formal religion. The man or woman who attends the church service observes all of its forms and ceremonies is faithful to its outward Obligations; is it not in the eyes of the world, a consistent church member, is careful about all the proprieties of formal religious life, and yet in whose heart there is no real living touch with God. Prayer means little, they are worried and anxious and burdened with care as though they had no faith in God. They fill the pews on Sunday but out from their lives day after day, goes no healing touch of divine grace and power flowing through their lives to others. It is a way that seemeth right—seems right to them and may seem oftentimes to others, and yet the end thereof are the ways of death. Here was the great difference between the current religion of his time and the religion which Jesus taught. The one was formal and outward, the other inner and spiritual. His followers were to be pointed to him and through him, to the Heavenly Father, say, 'I am the vine. Ye are the branches. Every branch in me beareth not fruit, for ye taketh away' because there is no life in it. It is formal and outward.

"Another way in which many are traveling in self-deception may be called the way of the individual conscience. Men say that 'I do as my conscience dictates,' and as an excuse for their bad course of conduct, 'I affirm that their conscience does not trouble them.' There is perhaps no more common error and certainly there is no greater or more fatal one.

There is one guide for us in this day of light and revelation, and that is the revealed will of God contained in his word, and your life must be guided by that if you are to follow a way that seems right to man, but the end thereof is the way of death. He who follows the truth of this book, and that is the way of death, in the first place, no man ever has, and no man ever can live as he ought to live, and never lives up to his own present knowledge. If there is one thing that the truth of God reveals in this book, that is, it have sinned and come short of the glory of God; that 'there is none righteous, no not one;' that if we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us, and there is only one way to escape from sin and its consequences and that is the way of Christ and his cross. Jesus himself affirmed that the discipline experienced it. Peter in his sermon at Pentecost said, 'There is no other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved,' and this salvation has been tested by multitudes in the years since then, and has never been found to fail. It frees from the guilt of sin, and no self-righteousness can.

"In the last place I want to mention one of the most serious of all mistakes, following the way of the crowd. Multitudes of men are simply drifting with the stream. They say,

"Well, I am as good as the average man. I am doing the things that others do. I am a part of the crowd and I will take my chances with them."

Jesus spoke plainly and truly when He said, 'Strait is the gate and narrow the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it.'

For the way of destruction and the end thereof are the ways of death."

"The land is cheap so that a man who has only a small capital can engage in sheep raising," says the bulletin. "Many settlers use sheep to clear the land, putting it in shape for dairying. They need a little grass and grain besides."

Prospective sheep raisers are instructed the best ways of starting a flock and handling them for the highest possible returns.

MAIL ORDERS.

Apparently the great bulk of the business of the mail order houses comes from the farming communities. People who live within ten minutes' walk of good retail stores do not usually send money away long distances and buy things without seeing them.

When a family is located some miles out from a trading center, the fascinations of the catalog become too great. No half tone can ever show the defects of second grade goods. The farmer and his wife think they can send their money order away for a hundred or a thousand miles, and no one will ever know the difference.

No one does know it but the postmaster or the expressman. But though the results are concealed, they are none the less real. A stream of trade is drawn out of the district where it naturally belongs. The net result is to help destroy the best market for the farmer's goods.

The best prices are obtained for farm products when they are sold near at hand. The farmer who depends on selling his grains or his fruits to distant jobbers and speculators has to put up with many disappointments and a good deal of dishonesty. Low prices are the rule. If there is some chance to dispose of goods near home, he becomes independent of middlemen and jobbers.

For that reason, it is for the interest of the farmers to see the population centers near their homes growing and prospering. If the farmers would all quit sending money away to distant states, and would buy from dealers near home, their home neighborhood would see a big access of business. It would have more stores, more merchants, more clerks, more people to feed. It would buy more farm products and pay good prices for them. The farmers living in the district surrounding Janesville should think of these things. Are they building up their own market, or are they building up a market for the farmers of other states?

INEFFICIENCY.

"Inefficiency is the keynote, the alpha and omega of the Wilson administration. Every day's debate in congress brings this fact into clearer light. Every day's conduct of the White House serves to emphasize it. Every official report on governmental activities or federal statistics effectively demonstrates it." This is the summing up of the fundamental characteristic of the democratic administration by a prominent senator whose long years of honorable service entitle his opinions to respect. "There is no branch of the government in which the democrats have not seriously blundered, no instrumentality of government which has not been gravely injured in its usefulness to the people by democratic administration. What is true now has been true of every democratic administration ever entrusted with the control of the government, and the worst of it is that the democrats cannot and will not learn. President Wilson is simply an extreme type of his party. People are amazed at the obstinate stupidity or the stupid obstinacy, with which he has refused to correct his mistakes and remedy his blunders, but he is merely carrying out the time-honored principles of the democratic party. What this senator says proves true wherever the activities and the record of this administration are examined. It is notably true of the nation's finances."

TRUTH AT LAST.

Secretary Daniels has, unwittingly no doubt, revealed the secret of his hostility to Admiral Fiske and the reasons which prompted him to send the admiral away from Washington so that he could not corrupt the morals of the innocent congressmen. Admiral Fiske, according to Mr. Daniels, was guilty of the unladylike conduct of insisting that the navy should be conducted upon "militaristic principles." To the infinite distress of Josephus and of his patron, William Jennings Bryan, the admiral had no sympathy with the former's kindergarten classes for Jackie's, actually scoffed at Daniels' scheme to teach the sailors to knit socks for suffering soldiers, and so conducted himself as to run the risk of encouraging "the fighting spirit" in the navy. As the "New York American" puts it, "Admiral Fiske has not only proved that he is not an officer and a lady, but that he hasn't any conception of the proper function of the United States navy."

SINCERE MOURNING.

This afternoon, at the beautiful Oak Hill cemetery, was enacted the last scene of one of the saddest tragedies that has come to Janesville in many years. Surrounded by the loving and sorrowing friends, the remains of Elsie Fathers and Charles Carr were lowered to their last resting place to await the final call of the resurrection and life everlasting.

The whole city mourned with the sorrowing parents and during the hours of the funeral all places of business closed as a mark of respect. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved father and the two mothers and loving relatives who have lost their dear ones.

Stricken down in the prime of their young lives, with everything before them, the two lie side by side in the quiet graveyard as they expected to go through life together. It is to those who are left to mourn their loss the sympathy is extended. Those who have gone before merely await their coming in the world to come.

FACE THE MUSIC.

It is absolutely necessary for every citizen of this great state of ours to face the music. By that they step to the front and do their duty in helping govern the commonwealth of Wisconsin. It is the stay-at-home vote that always defeats the end of good, sane government. This stay-at-home vote should realize that this nation is facing a national crisis and that at the September primaries men are to be named for national and state offices that are most vital to the interests of the community and state at large, and of the nation at large.

The vote last Tuesday was meager, according to our state population, and the fact that certain elements were victorious is due simply to the fact the stay-at-home vote was exceptionally large. Think it over. It is a long while to the next election, but worth considering now.

THE FACTORY FUND.

There is still considerable money needed to complete the twelve thousand dollars needed to assure Janesville of the branch of the Gossard factory. There have been many committees at work for some time past and benefit performances have been arranged at the theaters to help swell the sum, but many have failed to contribute because they could not afford to make a large donation, but would like to play their part. To meet this demand the Gazette has opened a subscription paper at the business office. Here contributions of cash and by signature can be made for almost any sum. Recently one woman brought in fifty cents. Her fifty cents meant just as much as some rich man's hundreds of dollars, in fact it meant more to her. The list is open. Avail yourself of the opportunity to subscribe.

BOY JOY-RIDERS.

A railroad man was saying the other day that it is becoming a favorite trick with boys to steal long railroad trips by passenger trains. Parties of boys will set out to see the world, and travel on the tops of cars, or secrete themselves on the trucks. The story is told that one day a few boys got so caught on a truck that a train had to be uncoupled to release them.

This kind of thing is one of many modern instances of loose family discipline. To a roving and restless type of boy, there is something very fascinating about railroad life. He hangs around stations when he should be running errands for his mother. Some day he tries his expertness at "hopping freights." A few years after that, he is the one-legged youth who is seeking to make an "honest" living selling lead pencils. Boys should be kept away from the railroads, as a place where there are many perils of life and limb. Also it is a place where tramps and vagrants entice many young fellows to adopt a wandering career.

In the way bulletins, when the enemy retreats, we have always won a glorious victory; when we retreat, it is merely retreating to a more strategic and advantageous position.

The man who offers such withering criticism of the wastefulness of the women's wide spirts, is usually the same one who condemned so scathingly the impropriety of the narrow ones.

The surgical dressings committees who send their handwork to Europe will find plenty of call for it at home with the automobile season well under way.

The optimist thinks of the bright spring sunshine, the pessimist of all the litter strewn around the back yard that must be cleaned up.

For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

"It would make the difference that you would be holding the sack instead of the other fellow," retorted Seagru.

The chairman, one of the larger minority stockholders, proved one of the least tractable of the dissatisfied. He rose to reply to Seagru's address. "You are telling us," he said coldly, "that you disposed of one of the best quartz properties in the Superstition mountains for a song because your foreman told you the vein had pinched out. And you say your expert corroborated his statement. By what right did you go ahead in this fashion without calling us together to decide whether we did not want further expert advice on the possibility of locating the vein?"

"That part of the matter has been threshed out already," said Seagru angrily.

"No, it hasn't," retorted the chairman. "Not to our satisfaction. Where the investment is so large, our interests should have been given the most careful consideration before you disposed of them."

"You wouldn't have got ten cents out of your interests," exclaimed Seagru, "if you had tried what you now propose."

"Even that wouldn't have been a serious matter," persisted the chairman, "as compared to what you have done. None of us here are dependent on dividends from the Superstition mine for our bread and butter. We feel, as business men, that we are entitled to consideration. You haven't given us that. By your own confession, you have disposed of this property under false pretenses. You have, by your conduct toward your competitors, justified the suspicion that has arisen among your own associates, Mr. Seagru."

"I don't wish to make any unfair insinuations or to assert what I cannot prove, but," interposed a second shareholder from the foot of the table, "I want to call forth your attention and the attention of every man in this meeting to the fact that the moment it is discovered by the Tidewater people that this mine was salted, we shall be called on to refund every dollar of the money paid to us."

"If that is the case," sneered Seagru, "I should say you fellows had better stop talking. Your greatest safety," he added, without much display of sympathy for the uneasy ones, "lies in keeping your mouths shut."

"It is a matter of no moment whatever," declared the stubborn chairman, "how much the thing is discussed. You know the men in this room, Mr. Seagru, well enough to know that we should all take the same position concerning what you confess you, yourself, have done in this matter. No matter what happened, we should never approve such proceedings."

"As things stand, I don't know what else you can do," said Seagru, soliloquy. "You talk here as if you owned this mine. I want you to understand that I hold the control of it, and you will do as I say."

"No," declared one stockholder, jumping up, "I won't do any such thing."

"Then you may do as you wish," replied Seagru, loftily, "but I am through with the Superstition mine."

The heated discussion continued. Almost everyone in the room took sides against Seagru. Finally, at bay himself, and realizing the trouble the minority stockholders could put him to, he made a further conciliatory proposal. "As we cannot agree," he said, "I am willing to buy your shares in the mine at their par value."

This seemed to pour a little oil upon the troubled waters. After some further wrangling, details were actually arranged then and there for the transfer of the minority shares, and the meeting closed in a better feeling than it had opened.

At the mine, Helen and George Storm were talking together when the foreman joined them. Helen asked him about the work.

"If you'll come this way," he suggested, "I'll show you exactly where we're going to drill today."

A messenger handed Helen a dispatch. It was from Rhinelander announcing the completion of the transfer and advising her he would arrive on No. 8.

"First, we'll go down and meet Mr. Rhinelander," said Storm to the foreman. "When we come back we'll see where you're working."

Rhinelander returned well pleased with the result of his trip.

They walked over to the mine together and entered it. While they were talking, a man came to Mr. Rhinelander, saying that the foreman had asked to see him. Accompanied by Helen and Storm, Rhinelander walked down the tunnel to where the men were working.

The foreman turned from his work. "How are things looking?" demanded Rhinelander.

"Why, to tell the truth," answered the man reluctantly, "they are not looking as good this morning as they were yesterday."

"What do you mean?"

"We had trouble with this vein once or twice before," began the foreman, guardedly, "but it didn't turn out very serious. This time it looks as if the vein had pinched out on us. Just come over this way."

Rhinelander stood as if rooted to the ground, looking significantly the while from Helen to Storm. "Helen," he said quizzically, "what does that sound like to you?"

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a woman with some literary talent, and am thinking of turning this talent to account. I have just completed a story which is a good plot for a moving picture play. Please advise me as to how to have my plot accepted and produced.

(2) What magazine or story paper would you recommend to one wishing to send short stories for publication?

(3) What New York newspaper is considered the "Wilson organ"?

(4) Moving picture companies now have their own scenario writers who write plots suited to certain pictures. They sometimes accept a good plot, but they no longer require it to be in good scenario form. You can find the addresses of moving picture producing companies in a moving picture magazine. Submit your material to a company with an actor you think particularly suited to the principal part. If it is refused try somewhere else. Typewrite whatever you send or it will not even be considered.

(5) Send your story to a magazine that wants the kind of a story you have written. By watching the stories that each magazine prints you can tell better than I which one would most likely accept your work.

(6) The New York World.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a high school girl and have been going with a young man for almost two years. He is of a good family and treats me with respect and has learned to care for him a great deal. He has given me a lavaliere and a ring, and I believe that he cared for me. Several weeks ago he told me that he could not come over to see me for some time and that he

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

HOW TO SNEEZE

BLOW AND COUGH

Nowadays the doctor has taught people how to stand, sit, breathe, eat, brush the teeth, dress, work and play. We have offered suggestions about all of these things in this department. Now let us explain how one should sneeze, blow the nose, and cough.

A good, hearty sneeze is an excellent thing for the health. It is nature's own antidote or prophylactic against colds and various other infections, gaining entrance through the nasal mucous membranes. To suppress a sneeze, for a little while, as pending the conclusion of the sermon, preachers generally are brief nowadays, you make gentle pressure upon the upper lip upward against the base of the nose with the edge of the index finger. But to muzzle a sneeze which is bound to come, and for the sake of your health, you simply hold your handkerchief over your nose thus avoiding the spraying of atmosphere with infectious droplets, and perhaps saving your neighbor from catching your "cold."

If you fail in this duty you deserve punishment quite as much as the impossible person who spits on the floor.

Most people injure themselves in blowing the nose. The wrong way to do this is by grasping the proboscis firmly between the fingers and blowing for all the world as though the intention was to balloon the lungs and burst the cardumus. The right way is by closing only one nostril at a time by pressure and then blowing the other. This obviates the risk of forcing infectious secretions up into the Eustachian tube and perhaps setting up earache or inflammation of the middle ear. Also it gives a more effective clearing of the nasal passage. Also it causes no abnormal condition.

SIDE TALKS

—By—
RUTH CAMERON

HE WAS SO AFRAID.

What a terrible bugbear the fear of being imposed upon is to some people! On a camping expedition in which I once joined, one member of the party was obsessed by this fear. He was an energetic young man who would work his head off in pursuit of pleasure or to do someone's favor he felt in the mood, but he was as much afraid of doing more than his share of the work as a miser is of opening his purse strings.

He Couldn't See Around His Own Share.

The work was divided up by lot.

and his share was really no larger than that of anyone else, but it bulked so big in his eyes that he couldn't see around it to see what the others were doing, and so became firmly convinced that he was doing the work of the whole camp.

If he hadn't been so amusing, he would have been extremely disagreeable, and if he didn't look out he will pass over the line some day.

Nothing is harder than to work on a committee with this type of person. Instead of an environment of helpfulness, you find yourself in an atmosphere electric with antagonisms and resentments. Each one is "willing to do my share, but I don't want to be imposed upon." Each one thinks the others are "getting off mighty easy," and all unite in thinking that the chairman is better at giving other people work to do than in doing it himself. As if that were not just what a chairman—the executive—should do!

People Who Look for Grievances Find Them.

People who go about looking for grievances always find them. If you go about in constant fear of being imposed upon you will surely find plenty of things to resent as impositions. You will always hold the burden you have to bear, your share of the compromising that is necessary to all social relationships, the work you have to do, so close to your eyes that it will limit your view of the other fellow's share, thus giving you the idea that your own is unfairly large.

To be sure, you may teach people to be careful not to impose on you. They will also learn to be careful not to have much to do with you.

Too Much Sensitiveness Means Too Much Ego.

The habit of looking for grievances, the fear of being imposed upon and the cultivation of a supersensitivity that is constantly thinking someone does not like you, or is slighting you, are all signs of an exaggerated ego.

The man who possesses any one of these traits is the man who thinks

DEDRICK BROS.

Kidnapped

By MRS.
EVA LEONARD

"Tell me all there is to be told," said Nell when she followed the doctor out of Olive's room on the evening of the visit to the county farm. "Olive said you saw your former wife among the inmates. And these are the people who are worth knowing and being with. With My Letter Friends.

Question—Why are some women so cantish that they cannot bear another woman's taste in dress or manners praised without showing their claws and thus making themselves a laughing stock to well-bred people?—Interested Subscriber.

Answer—Because they do not have enough large, human, normal interests to fill their minds and so permit them to be occupied with petty jealousies.

crime of kidnapping the baby, could you not make her tell where it is?" asked Nell.

"I would not think you would ask that question, knowing her," replied the doctor. "Our only chance of finding the baby is to keep her at all times within our sight, and to see that she is not with us."

"She will be a while before going to see us. Can't make till she is assured no one is watching her."

"Who could she get to take care of it?" asked Nell. "She surely had no money to pay for such care."

"That is the great mystery about the whole thing. But we have traced the woman and child to Burleigh, and we have found Anna an inmate of the insane ward less than two miles away. She was gone the day the baby disappeared, and she could have reached the farm by going across the fields without walking much over a mile. We feel sure that the baby is not far away." The doctor sat looking at the floor lost in thought.

"But you went everywhere on all the roads around there and inquired of so many people. I do not see how you could have missed finding her," observed Nell.

"But what object would anyone have to hide a baby from its own parents?" persisted Nell.

"That I cannot tell. I am utterly at a loss to think of a reason, especially as she could not have had money to hire it cared for." There was a deep wrinkle of perplexity between the doctor's eyes.

"I should have thought that Mrs. Elton would have tried to escape from the institution, when she got well," mused Nell.

"She could not go away without letting me know where she was for she had no money to live on. I wonder if she has been planning some revenge all this time," replied the doctor.

"I wonder," said Nell, rising to go. (To be continued.)

SUFFRAGE LEADERS TO MAKE LONG TOUR

Flying Squadron to Make Whirlwind Trip From Chicago to Western States in Interest of Votes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Washington, April 11.—At the conclusion here Sunday of the convention of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, the "Flying Petticoat Squadron" of 36 nationally known suffragist orators from non-suffrage states will start Chicagoowards the first leg of their nation-wide tour of appeal to the men and women voters in the suffrage states.

This 4500-mile tour of the whirlwind girls will, it is thought, be a sort of suffragistic front from Madesonia. They will be on the jump for 38 days, visiting 24 cities. Their motto will be "Fifty-Fifty or Fight. You Vote for Us and We'll Vote for You!"

Chicago is to be the first stop for the delegation. The party will leave the city Saturday night and reach Chicago Monday afternoon. From Chicago they will go to Kansas City, thence to Topeka, where Gov. Capper and state officials will be waiting; then to Wichita, Kan., Denver, Colorado Springs, Williams, Grand Canyon, Prescott and Phoenix, Ariz.; Los Angeles, San Francisco; Reno and Carson City, Nevada; Sacramento, Calif.; Salem and Portland, Oregon; Seattle and Spokane, Washington; Great Falls, Helena and Butte, Montana; Pocatello, Idaho; and Ogden, Salt Lake City, Utah.

April 15 half of the delegation will visit Cheyenne, Wyo. This plan will be followed on May 9 at Boise, Idaho.

At Salt Lake City a convention will end the trip. The convention is slated to be the largest and most spectacular ever held in the interest of suffrage. The party will return to Chicago on May 17.

Plans for the tour are simple and direct. The delegates are to go right out in the home of suffrage in the suffrage states, and organize every feminine voter. The consolidated voters—the plan is—will all vote together. And they won't vote for anybody, for dog-catcher, sheriff or president, who won't vote to give the rest of the women of the country the ballot.

Although the delegates are to be apportioned by states, one each from the thirty-six suffragist, medieval non-suffrage states, these members, famous among suffragists for their speeches, are declared to be sure winners:

Mrs. Ella Riegel of Philadelphia, in charge of the expedition; Mrs. Helen H. Weed, who has charge of the schedule of meetings; Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, a radical politician of the union; Mrs. Anna Constable of New York; Mrs. John Rogers of New York; Mrs. Minnie Van Winkle of Morristown, president of the New Jersey Woman's Political Union, and Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles of Wilmington, chairman of the Delaware branch of the union.

It will be about the first occasion on which the suffragettes, struggling along in the darkness, the suffragists frankly admit that the thirty states mentioned are—have sent missionaries to progressive, enlightened sections. They won't go on a strictly misionarp trip, though; they "lay to declare war on the blackmailing politicians and see that they climb on the band wagon or get rolled under its wheels."

BLIND SOLDIER WINS A WIFE IN ENGLAND IN A REAL WAR ROMANCE.

London, April 11.—Down in Wokingham, a little village nestled in the Surrey Hills, not far from London, George Fleetwood, 26, former British soldier, was married today.

PETEY DINK—A LOT OF THEM LOOKED LIKE CROOKS AT THAT.

SPORTS

BALL ASPIRANTS AT AMES ARE DEVELOPING RAPIDLY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Ames, Ia., April 11.—Coach Clyde Williams' baseball aspirants at Ames are fast rounding into form. Daily practice, according to the coach is developing one of the best teams in the town-star college.

Twenty-four outfielders and fifteen infielders make up the present squad but battery men have been hard to find. Okey is the most consistent performer on the slab to date and probably will prove to be the mainstay of the Cardinal and Gold defense.

Merrill, a new slab candidate is showing up well in practice except for lack of control. Mason, Jonda and Jester are expected to share in the heavy round work.

Stewart, up to the present time has shown more class than any other backstop according to Coach Williams. However, Bauerback and Neasham are valuable members of the catching staff.

Shakesups in the infield due to the loss of McBride on the keystone sack and Bangham at third have left the intact lineup problematical. Captain Kinnick is believed to have a long term lease on first. Six candidates, Kinnick, Elder, Brotherlin, Merrick and Morgan are trying for the position, at second.

Aldrick, all-star basketball and gridiron star is the outstanding find among last year's freshman recruits. His election to the berth at shortstop is believed to be a safe bet.

For third base a battle royal is one between five candidates, Dallas, Evans, Elder, Merrick and Firkens. Firkens is the favorite. His friends of top notch form last year at shortstop are working in his favor and although handicapped by the cold weather, he is rounding into shape very rapidly. His weak point appears to be a lack of batting eye.

Jones and Davis of last year's team are sure of two of the outfield positions with Tomlinson and Kinnick strong contenders for the only vacancy left in the graduation last year of an outelder. Jones has a healthy reputation as a slugger and is doing well up in the percentage column. Davis is considered one of the surest fielders in the Iowa conference.

SEEK TRACK STARS FOR THE 220 YARD DASH EVENT.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Des Moines, Ia., April 11.—Followers of track athletics at Drake University are slightly interested in the all-star 220 yard dash event which according to the announcement of the college athletic board is to be killed as an added attraction to the annual Drake relay meet to be held in the Drake stadium April 22. According to the board, the following 220 yard stars have been invited to participate and the majority of them have made acceptances to the Drake athletic director.

Smith, Michigan; Shearer, Drake; Vitto, Grinnell; Carter, Wisconsin; Bradley, Northwestern and Hohman, Illinois.

It is expected that interest will be added to the all-star event by the fact that it will bring together Hoyt, the Grinnell crack and Shearer, the Drake youngster who for two years past has won the furlong in the Iowa State meets. Rivalry between the two is intense and both men express confidence of winning out.

Smith, of Michigan won the 220 in the Eastern inter-collegiate last spring and is considered one of the fastest of modern sprinters. The other starters, especially Hohman, of Illinois, have a reputation for class in the 220 throughout the territory covered by the western conferences.

TRIS SPEAKER SATISFIED WITH SALE TO CLEVELAND

Boston, Mass., April 11.—Satisfied with the sale, as a result of which he goes to the Indians and Indians, Tris Speaker, the $50,000 outelder, will leave Boston Monday night at 11:15 to join the Cleveland team.

Speaker announced that he would start for Cleveland, following a conference with Owner Lannin of the Red Sox, early Monday afternoon. The conference lasted a half hour.

This would only say that the sale was satisfactory to him.

President Lannin denied that Speaker had been promised that he would be promised any part of the purchase money. He said Tris was contented the terms under which he would join Cleveland would be satisfactory.

JANESEVILLE ALL STARS RUN UP BIG SCORE ON WHITE SOX

The White Sox were no match at all for the heavy hitters on the Janesville All Star nine Sunday afternoon when they were defeated by an unusual large score of sixty-two to eleven. Four pitchers were knocked out of the heavy stars. A. Marko pulled off the best, getting one home run and three of four runs or four three baggers. Lento and Bick also mainstays for their team. Next Sunday these two teams will play a return game at the park. The battery for the Stars was as follows: Lento, catch; C. Hager and C. Bick, pitchers.

George Boehler, Detroit pitcher, has shown so much improvement since Billy Sullivan took charge of him that if he keeps up his present he is sure to be one of the Tigers' best pitchers. Sullivan has succeeded in taming this wild man. Boehler seems to have forgotten that he is ever wild and now has the confidence which does so much to make a pitcher effective. If Sullivan has made a winner out of Boehler he has more than earned his salary from the Detroit club, even this early in the season.

BLUE RIBBONS DEFEAT THE PARKER PEN FIVE BY 4 PINS

The Parker Pens and the Blue Ribbons met last night on the Miller alleys and rolled in an air-light game, which resulted in a victory for the Blue Ribbons by a close margin of 4 pins. The Parker men started out in the first event and took a wide lead, but in the next two games they fell clear below the eight hundred mark.

Barney Reilly, who captained the ball field with the St. Joseph Western league club until he quit the game to practice law, may be boss of that city next year. He's running for mayor on the Democratic ticket and is said to be the most popular candidate. He played with the White Sox at one time.

Jim Bluejacket, that wonderful Indian pitcher, who "starred" with the Brooklyn club, has dropped back into his old class and signed with the Bloomington Three-league club.

Miss Frances Cowells, champion woman swimmer of the Pacific coast, is having trouble finding a boxer. She's having trouble finding a boxer willing to don the padded mitts.

Freddie Welch, world's champion lightweight, announces he will retire within a year. He is now looking around for a place in the country near New York to establish a health farm. He is going to open a gymnasium along Broadway as a feeder for the farm.

Jimmy Austin is very apt to beat Charlie Deal, utility man for the Braves at one time, out of the third base position on the Browns. Austin is displaying so much more "pepper" than Deal and is so much faster and more energetic that there is little chance of Deal being kept by Fielder Jones, according to some of the St. Louis critics. When Jones took charge of the amalgamated team he made Deal switch to third base man, but Austin has effectively disputed this statement. There are those who believe that in due time Clarence Walker will beat out some of the Red outfielders that Jones placed on the team, for Walker is too good a hitter and fielder to be on the bench.

When Billy Sunday watched the world champion Red Sox battle Baltimore Orioles, he huddled up in his fur overcoat and left his enthusiasm in the tabernacle. Well, even a home run by Tris Speaker only moved him to a slight smile.

Earl Moseley has cinched a hurling berth with the Reds, according to a Cinc scribe. Earl was grabbed off by the Red Sox after pitching no-hitters in the minors. Then he hurried to the Feds. The Reds grabbed him this spring.

Pitcher George Zabel, before accepting a transfer from the Cubs to Los Angeles, insisted that the Cubs agree to let him share in the world series coin next fall if they copped. When it was explained that the national commission wouldn't allow him to insist on sharing in the city series money, he was turned down again.

Watertown, Me., is to have a team of one-armed baseball players. Louis Johnson, one-armed captain of the high school nine there, has three boys already enlisted and expects to have a completed roster this spring.

There is no doubt that single men are stronger than the married men, as they proved it down at the Miller alleys last night in a match bowling game. The singles led by their captain Georgia Berger had no trouble at all in getting away with the honors. They won the match by just forty pins. Scores:

WISCONSIN BALL TEAM ON SPRING TRAINING TRIP

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, April 11.—The "varsity baseball squad leaves on Wednesday for the spring training trip. Three states, namely Indiana, Iowa and Illinois will be covered, with six games scheduled. On Wednesday the Badgers open at Notre Dame, playing there on Thursday also. The squad will leave Madison at three in the morning, arriving at Notre Dame shortly after noon Wednesday. Armor will be played on Thursday at Chicago. Dubuque college will be played Saturday, followed by a game at Princeton, N. J., with Campion college Monday. Tuesday the Cardinal will end its trip by playing the fast Luther college nine at Decatur. Fifteen players, the names to be given out later, will make the trip. Coach Jeneau expressed confidence that the Badgers will be a strong contender in the conference race. Captain Bouwmeester will not make the trip on account of injury.

REDUCE BASEBALL SQUAD AT INDIANA UNIVERSITY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Bloomington, April 11.—Coach Fred Beebe has cut the baseball squad at Indiana University from 40 to 25 men, probably will make a further reduction in a few days, after he has had an opportunity to judge of the best players in action.

The batter's positions seem to be oversupplied and Coach Beebe is giving every one of the pitchers his closest attention in order to select the best material before the squad is chopped down to the size it will be maintained throughout the season.

The pitching staff is composed of Shively, Ridley, K. Kunkle, Smith, Gilbert. Eleven men have been retained in the infield as follows: Capt. Nash, Whitaker, Sutheimer, Anderson, Eberhart, Eisenhower, Eisenbise, W. K. Steele, Sane and Nafe, while the outfield will be chosen from Buschmann, Gray, Swope, Legler, Rayle, broke a finger at the beginning of indoor practice. He expects to be back in uniform within a short time.

George Boehler, Detroit pitcher, has shown so much improvement since Billy Sullivan took charge of him that if he keeps up his present he is sure to be one of the Tigers' best pitchers. Sullivan has succeeded in taming this wild man. Boehler seems to have forgotten that he is ever wild and now has the confidence which does so much to make a pitcher effective. If Sullivan has made a winner out of Boehler he has more than earned his salary from the Detroit club, even this early in the season.

entered in the contest, but the day after having the dream he coaxed his dream partner into teaming with him, they entered—and won the doubles prize.

Joe Tinker, who said that in Yerkes and Doolan he had the greatest pair of infielders in either major league, is honest enough to admit his mistake in saying this. In the next interview, which follows, Tinker admits that neither Yerkes nor Doolan will do for his team. Here in his state, Doolan and Yerkes are not fast enough. They do not have enough ground to make a ball club win games. To be successful, the team must work like flashes. It is my opinion that they are the most important cogs in a baseball machine. I know that Mulligan and Zeider will prove better men for the Cubs than Doolan and Yerkes. They are faster and their speed will help the team a whole lot on the bases.

Barney Reilly, who captained the ball field with the St. Joseph Western league club until he quit the game to practice law, may be boss of that city next year. He's going to open a health farm. He is going to establish a gymnasium along Broadway as a feeder for the farm.

Jim Bluejacket, that wonderful Indian pitcher, who "starred" with the Brooklyn club, has dropped back into his old class and signed with the Bloomington Three-league club.

Miss Frances Cowells, champion woman swimmer of the Pacific coast, of an outfield job in place of Fred Snodgrass, he of $28,000 world series miff fame, and Blackburn will be Head Gowdy, chief understudy.

Next morning she read with horror "Mrs. Betty Blank looked very charming, and by a tasteful arrangement of lace and silk, effectively concealed the pink porous plaster which her delicate health compels her to wear."

"Your daughter," said Mrs. Oldcastle, after being conducted through the newly furnished wing of the magnificent palace occupied by the magnificient Bullingtons, "has such a splendid vocabulary." "Do you think so?" her hostess replied. "Josiah is a young people, from New York and Maryland as far west as Montana. Among the prominent students to receive the key are Miss Margaret L. Wanl, of footlight fame, and Ernest Philipp, both of Milwaukee. No student from Rock county is named."

Twelve juniors were named as Beta Kappa students.

THIRTY-THREE STUDENTS GET PHI BETA KAPPA KEY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, April 11.—Thirty-three students, all seniors, at the University of Wisconsin, have been awarded the coveted key of Phi Beta Kappa for academic excellence in scholarship.

Out of this number, fourteen are Madison young people. The students represent eleven states, from New York and Maryland as far west as Montana.

Among the prominent students to receive the key are Miss Margaret L. Wanl, of footlight fame, and Ernest Philipp, both of Milwaukee. No student from Rock county is named."

Dinner Stories

Miss Boss was settlement worker and one day she called at the home of the Thompsons. She found no one at home but a girl of about twelve and

Freddie Welch, world's champion lightweight, announces he will retire within a year. He is now looking around for a place in the country near New York to establish a health farm. He is going to open a gymnasium along Broadway as a feeder for the farm.

Jimmy Austin is very apt to beat Charlie Deal, utility man for the Braves at one time, out of the third base position on the Browns. Austin is displaying so much more "pepper" than Deal and is so much faster and more energetic that there is little chance of Deal being kept by Fielder Jones, according to some of the St. Louis critics. When Jones took charge of the amalgamated team he made Deal switch to third base man, but Austin has effectively disputed this statement. There are those who believe that in due time Clarence Walker will beat out some of the Red outfielders that Jones placed on the team, for Walker is too good a hitter and fielder to be on the bench.

Summer training in the harvest field is all wrong for the husky youth who aspires to his college football team, according to Coach "Beau" Olcott of Kansas University. Olcott says a gridiron player leaves all his pep in the fields.

When Billy Sunday watched the world champion Red Sox battle Baltimore Orioles, he huddled up in his fur overcoat and left his enthusiasm in the tabernacle. Well, even a home run by Tris Speaker only moved him to a slight smile.

Earl Moseley has cinched a hurling berth with the Reds, according to a Cinc scribe. Earl was grabbed off by the Red Sox after pitching no-hitters in the minors. Then he hurried to the Feds. The Reds grabbed him this spring.
